We put pizzazz into new product launches.

We add spice to banquets.

We subtract the boredom from sales conferences.

We multiply the fun and games at all kinds of other private and corporate events, too. Then we divide the profits among ourselves.

We've been doing all this around St Louis since 1991.

The diagram illustrates the architecture of the HOTSPACE system. A large box labeled "HOTSPACE" contains several internal components: "External Component Wrapper", "DXC", "RunTime API", and "Server Services API".

- External Component Wrapper and DXC are connected by a bidirectional arrow labeled "HTTP Interface" (top) and "Runtime" (bottom).
- DXC is connected to RunTime API and Server Services API by arrows pointing downwards.
- RunTime API is connected to a cylinder representing Run Time Data by an arrow pointing downwards.

External components and their interactions:

- Web Server Page (outside) connects to External Component Wrapper via a line with a dot at the wrapper end.
- Remote Application (outside) connects to DXC via a bidirectional arrow.
